Amir Shlomian

The article reviews the personal path of Amir Shlomian, an educator, social activist and musician, who co-founded kindergartens and an Arab-Jewish school in the spirit of Waldorf education in Kfar Khilaf in the Lower Galilee: “Ein Bustan”. Shlomian describes the establishment of the association “Maayan Bustan” and the educational initiative and presents some of the many challenges that have stood in their way. The Waldorf Arab-Jewish School “Ein Bustan” is based on an triangle, whose one lice is bilingualism as a way of accepting and knowing the other, the other is Waldorf education and the third is listening, as a way that must be practice again and again.
