

Bees, Anthroposophy and Waldorf Education

Yossi Aud

This article describes the problem of colony collapse disorder (ccd) and tries to get to its roots. Then the article describes the anthroposophy-inspired method of agriculture – biodynamic agriculture and the bee-keeping sector using this method. There is a comparison between conventional beekeeping and beekeeping in a biodynamic way. The article then describes the importance of beekeeping within schools as a practical field of study and how this is implemented in different schools in Israel.
